

FINANCIAL EDUCATION IN THE WORKPLACE

From the Experts...

“Even a small increase in an employee’s financial security can add significantly to an employer’s bottom line.”
—Dr. Susan Jerkins, Idaho State University

“Don’t give employees a raise; give them access to the quality financial information, education and advice. Employers can expect $450 in positive job outcomes from each employee who slightly increases his or her financial behaviors and financial well-being.”
—Dr. Dr. E. Thomas Garman,
Professor Emeritus, Virginia Tech University

“For the employer, research studies have shown that employees who are financially healthy are more productive. They are absent less often, spend less time at the workplace dealing with financial crises, and earn higher job performance ratings.”
—Governor Edward M. Gramlich,
Financial Literacy and Education Commission, Washington, D.C.

“Employees who participate in workplace financial education more fully understand personal finances and recognize how financial literacy impacts their future financial expectations. In addition, employees who gain considerable literacy in financial matters and confidence in their future situation are also more likely to be satisfied with and supportive of their company.”
—The Journal of Consumer Affairs, Volume 39, Number 1

FINANCIAL EDUCATION IN THE WORKPLACE

IMPROVING WORKPLACE

productivity, health and well-being through personal financial education

